

Zoning, Subdivision & Land Use

Our firm represents developers, landowners, and special interest groups in all aspects of land use and land development matters. Our practice in this area includes representation in rezonings, annexations, subdivisions, variances, enforcement issues, and virtually all other areas of land use and planning. This includes regular appearances at hearings before city and county boards and commissions, as well as representation in land use litigation at the trial and appellate levels. We also represent developers and landowners in the negotiation and execution of development contracts. In addition to private developers and landowners, we represent municipal interests in land use disputes.