

Appellate Litigation

Our firm's appellate practice is made up of a team of nationally recognized litigators. Under the leadership of former Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court, the Honorable Henry E. Frye, we offer extensive experience, insightful analysis, rigorous briefing, persuasive argument and a thorough knowledge of the intricate appellate rules and procedure.

Clients frequently rely on us to handle their critical and high-profile appeals, for the sake of defending their victories and correcting trial court errors. Further, we are often hired to represent trade associations and others to file briefs on issues of interest to them. Our firm's appellate litigators regularly work hand-in-hand as part of trial teams to build value for our clients by analyzing potential appellate issues and ensuring that trial court records are created in a way to maximize our clients' chances of prevailing on appeal.
