Wade Hargrove's practice is concentrated in communications, antitrust, corporate, media, Internet, copyright, public utility law and Congressional representation. He has been asked to testify before numerous Congressional and legislative committees on issues involving corporate law, copyright law, the Internet, satellite broadcasting, open government, libel and slander, political broadcasting, broadcast license renewal, cable television, and public utility law. He regularly advises clients in mergers and acquisitions and has served as counsel in some of the nation's largest media transactions.

He appears regularly before the Federal Communications Commission and other government agencies, as well as federal and state courts, and he counsels clients on Congressional and state legislative matters. New technologies and associated issues of intellectual property, licensing and contractual negotiations, and mergers and acquisitions are significant components of his practice. His regular clients include radio and television broadcast stations, cable television companies, newspapers, Internet and new technology companies, telephone companies, public utilities, financial institutions, and trade associations.
