August 25, 2008

Brooks Pierce Litigation Support Specialist, Keith Carter, was featured in the August 22 issue of the Triad Business Journal in the article "Tech on trial: State-of-the-art technology playing a bigger role in courtrooms" by Michelle Cater Rash.

Jurors, judges, and even clients have come to expect attorneys to support their arguments with video, animation, power point and other presentation systems. Courtrooms are increasingly equipped with screens, projectors, internet connections and computers for these purposes. Those who use the systems efficiently have a distinct courtroom advantage.

Brooks Pierce is a local leader when it comes to technology in the courtroom. The firm employs two full-time Litigation Support Specialists, Keith and Susan Kasek, a Summation Certified Trainer.
