

Brooks Pierce Attorney Joins Board of Local Children's Museum

November 30, 2017

Subscribe to News and Insights

Via RSS

Via Email

Brooks Pierce attorney Ryan Fairchild has joined the board of directors for the Children's Museum of Wilmington.

Located downtown in 17,000-square-feet, the Children's Museum of Wilmington aims to provide a safe and fun place where children can actively learn through creative and imaginative play, with an emphasis on hands-on science, math and art activities.

Fairchild's diverse practice includes a particular interest in the esports industry. He represents players, content producers and stakeholders in a variety of contract and licensing issues. He also represents domestic and international clients in state and federal litigation, including in complex business, intellectual property, and constitutional matters. A former law clerk, he studied law at The University of North Carolina School of Law and received his bachelor's degree from Brigham Young University. He is the father of three children, a 3-month-old daughter and two boys, ages 4 and 6.