

Brooks Pierce Attorneys Author Guide on Responding to Discovery Subpoenas

Clint S. Morse

October 16, 2015

Subscribe to News and Insights

Via RSS

Via Email

Brooks Pierce attorneys Clint Morse and Caitlin Poe recently authored Responding to Discovery Subpoenas: North Carolina, published by Practical Law. This Q&A guide covers the different ways to respond to a discovery subpoena issued in a North Carolina civil proceeding. It addresses requirements for complying with discovery subpoenas, objecting to a subpoena seeking documents, moving to quash a subpoena, and moving for a protective order.

For more information or to order a copy of the guide, visit the Practical Law website.