

Q&A with Kearns Davis in North Carolina Lawyer's Weekly

August 6, 2010

Subscribe to News and Insights

Via RSS

Via Email

North Carolina Lawyers Weekly

Kearns Davis is a partner with Brooks, Pierce, McLendon, Humphrey & Leonard in Greensboro. Davis leads the firm's practice in the areas of white-collar criminal defense, felony trials and appeals, grand jury proceedings and government investigations.

From 2003-2007, Davis served as an assistant U.S. attorney for the Middle District of North Carolina. He also served as a law clerk to former state appeals court Chief Judge Sam Ervin III from 1995-1996.

Davis is past chair of the N.C. Bar Association's Criminal Justice Section and Young Lawyers Division. In addition to other professional affiliations, Davis is a member of the Greensboro Rotary Club and the Greensboro Sports Council.

In the article Kearns discusses memorable cases, mentors, lessons learned, CLEs and the most beneficial professional organizations.