Craig Schauer is a litigator who counsels and advocates for clients. He has been fortunate to counsel clients through a wide variety of disputes and legal problems, ranging from business disagreements to constitutional lawsuits. He regularly advocates for clients in state courts, federal courts, appellate courts, arbitration proceedings, and regulatory hearings.

COMPLEX BUSINESS LITIGATION

Craig has represented businesses of all sizes—from small partnerships to Fortune 100 corporations—in state and federal courts, arbitration proceedings, and various regulatory agencies with disputes regarding contractual relationships, constitutional rights, class actions, unfair competition claims, government regulations, defamation, and other commercial issues. He has worked with clients in a variety of sectors, including healthcare, construction, professional sports, nonprofit, franchises, energy, financial services, public utilities, and local and state government.

"I believe in resolving disputes amicably, but do not hesitate to throw hard — but fair — punches to protect my clients."

UTILITIES REGULATION

Craig's advocacy includes representing parties in substantial matters before state regulatory commissions, including rate proceedings, resource planning proceedings, acquisitions, and other matters requiring regulatory approval. Before pursuing a legal career, Craig was an investment banker who advised companies on mergers and acquisitions, which has given him a deep understanding of the numerous financial aspects of the regulation of utilities, including rate of return, capital structure, and cost of service.

ELECTION LAW AND FIRST AMENDMENT

Craig helps clients confidently express their political voice by ensuring that their political conduct complies with the law. He advises corporations on how to form entities that will be politically active, either directly or indirectly, and helps craft company policies on political activity and lobbying practices. He represents clients before the Board of Elections and the Ethics Commission in regulatory proceedings and confidential investigations. He also assists local and state governments in ensuring compliance with federal and state elections law, including the Voting Rights Act and other constitutional requirements.

Craig not only assists clients with political activity, but also helps them navigate other free speech and First Amendment issues within the public sphere.

ABOUT ME

I believe that relationships matter – we were not created to live in isolation. I invest in the relationships in my life, and I prioritize my family and local community. But I also believe that relationships matter to my clients: Businesses, just like people, do not exist in a vacuum – they depend on relationships. Unfortunately, all relationships, whether personal or business, are prone to breaking down. In my personal life, I seek to foster and restore relationships by being involved in local ministries. In my professional life, I use the law and the courts to help my clients build and defend their most important relationships.
