05.08.2012

Brooks Pierce partner Kearns Davis presented "Internal Corporate Investigations and Disclosure to Law Enforcement" at the North Carolina Bankers Association Security Summit on May 9, 2012.

With computer intrusions, robberies, fraud, data theft and other crimes against banks and their customers becoming increasingly common and complicated, it is critical that banks stay informed of the security measures that most effectively combat such activities. This year's Security Summit reviewed pertinent physical and data security topics for today's banking professionals.

Kearns Davis leads the firm's practice in the areas of white-collar criminal defense, felony trials and appeals, grand jury proceedings, and government investigations. He also handles a broad range of federal and business litigation.
