

Brooks Pierce Attorney Discusses Employer Testing for COVID-19 with the Triangle Business Journal

Triangle Business Journal
05.13.2020

Brooks Pierce attorney James Bobbitt recently discussed employers testing for COVID-19 with the Triangle Business Journal.

The article, “Lawyers: What employers should know about testing for coronavirus,” discusses steps employers should take if they consider testing employees for COVID-19 when returning to work.

James Bobbitt counsels employers of all sizes in a wide range of employment law matters, and represents them in litigation in state and federal courts. He also represents businesses facing litigation for complex business matters. James is admitted to practice in Kentucky and is currently seeking admission to the North Carolina State Bar.

The full article can be viewed online with a subscription here.

SERVICES

COVID-19 Response Resources

Labor & Employment