"Boston Bomb Suspect Says He Can't Get a Fair Trial"

On February 10, Bloomberg published an article written by Erik Larson covering jury selection in the Boston Marathon bombing trial. Brooks Pierce partner Kearns Davis was quoted.

From the article:

It would be impossible to find a city where some people haven't already made up their minds, said Kearns Davis, a defense lawyer and a former federal prosecutor who isn't involved in the Tsarnaev case.

"The defense just wants a place where it's not almost everybody," said Davis, of Brooks, Pierce, McLendon, Humphrey & Leonard LLP in Raleigh, North Carolina.
