“Boston Bomb Trial Opening Delayed Over Jury Selection”

Brooks Pierce partner Kearns Davis was quoted by reporter Erik Larson in Bloomberg's coverage of the Boston Marathon bombing trial. Regarding the jury selection process, Davis said “Even if the judge denies the bid to move the trial, the request may serve as a basis to challenge a conviction, said Kearns Davis, a defense lawyer and a former federal prosecutor who isn’t involved in the Tsarnaev case. “It will preserve the record for a possible appeal if he is convicted and receives a death penalty,” said Davis, of Brooks, Pierce, McLendon, Humphrey & Leonard, LLP in Raleigh, North Carolina.
