Brooks Pierce attorney Sarah Saint recently published an article focused on diversity for the North Carolina Bar Association's (NCBA) blog.

The article, "An Interview with Drew Culler," discusses Culler's path into law, the future of diversity in the legal profession and provides advice for diverse, new attorneys and law students.

Saint has a particular focus on broadening awareness of diversity issues within organizations. She counsels companies, educational institutions, and other organizations on compliance with state and federal civil rights regulations, including Title VII and Title IX, the IDEA, the ADA, and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. She also assists organizations with developing diversity and inclusion policies. Saint currently serves as the co-chair of the Diversity and Inclusion Committee for the North Carolina Bar Association's Young Lawyers Division.
