05.06.2022

Brooks Pierce partner Arty Bolick recently received the CPN of North Carolina Kurt Ryback Memorial Service Award. The award is given to members of the organization who have dedicated their time, knowledge, and service to CPN of North Carolina.

CPN is a non-profit organization that encourages the association of outstanding business owners, senior executives, professionals, and public officials all related to the construction industry. The network of individuals is a close knit, trusted source of information; giving advice, and providing services to improve business practices within the construction industry in North Carolina.

Bolick represents owners, contractors and subcontractors in disputes during all phases of a construction project, including negotiating change orders and other claims that may arise during a project, as well as post completion litigation and arbitration. He looks to provide value to clients by saving litigation costs and expense where claims can be resolved through careful negotiation. When litigation is the best strategy, Bolick has more than two decades of experience litigating disputes in the courtroom and through arbitration. He has appeared on behalf of clients in both state and federal courts, and before numerous experienced mediators and arbitrators.
