

Brooks Pierce Welcomes Nine Summer Associates for 2021

05.17.2021

Brooks Pierce is pleased to welcome nine law students to work alongside the firm's attorneys as part of its 2021 Summer Associate Program. The associates are currently enrolled in law schools across North Carolina, New York and California.

The Firm's 2021 summer associates are:

- Gabby Delgado, first-year student at University of North Carolina (UNC) School of Law and the 2021 Chief Justice Henry E. Frye – Brooks Pierce Diversity Summer Fellow;
- Chris Dodd, second-year student at Duke University School of Law;
- Locke Ho, second-year student at University of California, Berkeley, School of Law;
- Aurora Jaques, first-year student at UNC School of Law;
- James Kendall, second-year student at Duke University School of Law and the 2020 Chief Justice Henry E. Frye – Brooks Pierce Diversity Summer Fellow;
- Ian Maddox, first-year student at UNC School of Law;
- Gabby Motsinger, second-year student at UNC School of Law;
- Christiane Smedley, second-year student at UNC School of Law;
- Haejin Song, first-year student at New York University School of Law.

"We are pleased to welcome this year's class of summer associates to Brooks Pierce," said Reid Phillips, the firm's managing partner. "We look forward to providing them with the opportunity to further develop their skills and work in Brooks Pierce's collaborative environment."

The firm's summer program is designed to present law students with a broad view of Brooks Pierce's wide range of practices while nurturing each summer associate's individual legal interests. Summer associates contribute to litigation, transactional and government relations matters across a wide array of industries. They will work closely with their partner and associate mentors and other attorneys, as well as the professional staff, allowing them to grow as aspiring attorneys. More information about Brooks Pierce's summer program can be found here.